

Jordan Rivera is a software engineer with five years of experience building backend systems in Python and Go, focused on distributed systems reliability.

Jordan has led migrations to microservices, mentored junior engineers, and holds a Bachelor of Science in Computer Science from a public university.